Gold Star families honored with new monument

By Kitsey Burns Harrison

A slight drizzle gave way to blue sky and bright sunshine during Memorial Day weekend dedication ceremony for the new Gold Star monument in Elkin Municipal Park. Though recognizing the sadness of the sacrifice of families who have lost a loved one in service to the nation, the day was also a bittersweet celebration of the vow to honor that sacrifice and never forget those who gave all.

“We intend this to be a place of healing and reflection, we want the families to know that their loved ones have not been forgotten,” said Jon Carling, Chairman of the Gold Star Committee which raised funds for the monument.

The event, held the Sunday prior to Memorial Day, was widely attended by area Gold Star families, veterans and supporters as well as numerous members of the Rolling Thunder motorcycle group which honors POW and MIA veterans and MIAs members of the armed services.

The monument in Elkin represents the third monumental work by local artist Woody Williams Foun- dation which seeks to “honor sacrifice, and serve Gold Star Families,” as the 18th such statute in the country. There are two additional Gold Star monuments in the eastern part of the state in Wilmington and in Carteret County, this is the only Gold Star memorial in western North Carolina and northwest Virginia.

Williams, the last remaining World War II Marine to wear the Medal of Honor, took part in the ceremony, sharing several poems and readings reflecting on those who have lost loved ones in service.

“This is a day of a new beginning for this community,” Williams told the large crowd. “This is a special day for me, a day that those who have lost loved ones who have served America will be remembered. For those who have loved ones who have sacrificed all, for those who have lost everything.”

“Thank you for the opportunity to be here,” Williams continued. “It’s going to affect the lives of untold Americans, those who sacrificed and those who, for the first time, can observe a tribute and honor to those who have lost a few people or perhaps made freedoms possible for somebody else who has never known what freedom really was.”

The history of the site where Elkin Municipal Park now stands was referenced several times during the event.

“It is only fitting that this monument shows that sacrifice of families who have lost a loved one in service to the nation. This monument shows that Elkin honors the Gold Star families of Northwest North Carolina and Northwest Virginia and thanks them for their sac-

Franks described the ceremony as “the army generals thatono the next day...”

“Thank you for the opportunity to be here,” Williams said. “I have no idea how many people are going to come here, but I do know that it’s going to be a special day for me.”

The monument features the names of two additional Gold Star families of Northwest North Carolina and Northwest Virginia.

“Weeks later with a broken leg and shot like a snake,” Franks recalled. “I was shot in the spine and the next day captured by the Germans.”
